EXCHANGES

- The Future of European Astropolitics

NIKOLA SCHMIDT AND BOHUMIL DOBOS

Date of publication: 30/11/2015

In a pioneering conversation opening a new series of Deutsch Security Square occasional exchanges on topical security issues of the day, Nikola Schmidt and Bohumil Dobos, both with the Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University, discuss the future of European astropolitics. In the course of the conversation, Schmidt challenges Dobos' case for desirability of 'colonising' the Moon to prevent access denial of space exploration by potentially hostile actors by pointing to several political, legal and technical issues that problematise this position. This leads to dialectical development of Dobos' argument and situating it in a broader context of EU's strategy.
